

U.S. NEWS

Amazon's Alexa may have witnessed alleged Florida murder, authorities say

Adam Reecharo Crespo is charged with murder in connection to the July death of his girlfriend, Silvia Galva, in Hallandale Beach.

Nov. 2, 2019, 11:27 AM EDT / Updated Nov. 2, 2019, 4:06 PM EDT

By Minyvonne Burke

Police in Florida believe recordings from a murder suspect's Amazon Echo may contain crucial information as they investigate an alleged argument at the man's home that ended in his girlfriend's death.

Adam Reecharo Crespo, 43, is charged with murder in connection to the July death of Silvia Galva, who died after suffering a stab wound to the chest.

The Broward County Sheriff's Office believes Crespo's Echo — a smart speaker that connects to the Amazon voice-activated personal assistant Alexa — may have been a witness to the crime and obtained